

ICS 11.020
CCS C 05

WS

INDUSTRY STANDARD OF THE
PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA

WS/T 525-2016

Guideline for professional training about managing of healthcare associated infections
(English Translation)

Issued on: August 2, 2016

Implemented on: January 15, 2017

Issued by: National Health and Family Planning Commission of the People's Republic of China

Table of Contents

- Foreword
- 1 Scope
- 2 Training objectives and requirements
 - 2.1 Training purpose
 - 2.2 Training requirements
- 3 Training phase
- 4 Training methods
- 5 Training content

Foreword

This standard is formulated in accordance with the "Law of the People's Republic of China on the Prevention and Control of Infectious Diseases".

This standard was drafted in accordance with the rules given in GB/T 1.1-2009.

Drafting organizations of this standard. Central South University Xiangya Hospital, Peking University First Hospital, National Health and Family Planning Commission Hospital Management Institute, Beijing University Dental Hospital, Xuanwu Hospital Affiliated to Capital Medical University, Hainan Provincial People's Hospital, PLA General Hospital, First Affiliated Hospital of Nanchang University.

1 Scope

This standard specifies the training objectives and requirements, training stages and methods, and training content of hospital infection management professionals.

This standard applies to the standardized training of job knowledge for medical staff engaged in hospital infection management.

2.1 Training purpose

Through systematic hospital infection theory, knowledge, skills and related laws, regulations, standards and regulations for hospital infection management professionals Training to enable them to have professional knowledge of hospital infection prevention and control, and be able to undertake hospital infection management and business technical work Made.

2.2 Training requirements

2.2.1

The health and family planning administrative department of the provincial people's government shall formulate a standardized job training plan in accordance with the "Nominal Infection Management Measures" and this guide.

Planning, training syllabus, and course settings should meet the requirements of professional positions, and the qualifications for qualifications shall be issued.

2.2.2

Medical institutions should formulate job training plans for nosocomial infection management professionals in accordance with the "Nominal Infection Management Measures" and this guide.

The program setting should meet the requirements of professional positions, and there should be training records and assessment results.

2.2.3

The training institution shall meet the following basic conditions.

- a) There is an organization and management system;
- b) Have teachers suitable for the training tasks;
- c) Have the necessary places, facilities and equipment for training;
- d) There is a training plan, training syllabus and training materials, and the requirements are shown in Appendix A;
- e) The curriculum meets the requirements of professional positions;
- f) Issuing job training certificates to qualified candidates.

2.2.4

The training of hospital infection management professionals is divided into three stages, and different training methods should be adopted according to different training stages and training objectives.

formula.

3 Training phase

3.1

The first stage (basic training) Newly hired, transferred medical staff, and professionals who have worked in hospital infection management positions for less than two years should participate in basic training. Training at this stage the training focuses on basic theories, basic knowledge, basic skills, and relevant laws and regulations. See Appendix B for its content.

The training is mainly focused on lectures, supplemented by self-study and online learning.

3.2

The second stage (practical training) Professionals who have been engaged in hospital infection management for more than two years and less than five years should participate in practical training. To master the foundation of the first stage knowledge it should understand the identification, investigation, prevention and control of nosocomial infection outbreaks, targeted surveillance of nosocomial infections, and key departments and key links of hospitals Contents such as infection prevention and control are the main content. See Appendix C for specific requirements.

The training is mainly focused on lectures, supplemented by self-study and online learning.

3.3

The third stage (improving training) the training of professionals engaged in nosocomial infection management for more than five years should be based on the new theories, new knowledge, and new technologies of nosocomial infection. Make it can apply the knowledge learned to train medical staff in medical institutions and carry out scientific research related to hospital infections.

The form of training can be self-study, participation in continuing medical education training courses for hospital infection management and related disciplines, or participation in professional academic exchange meetings Wait.

4 Training methods

4.1

Concentrated lectures and training. multimedia classroom lectures are the mainstay, and appropriate classroom discussions can be arranged.

4.2

Concentrated lectures and combined training with teaching. Appropriate discussion of infection control scenarios, classroom lectures, and practical training with teaching can be arranged.

4.3

Online video training. mainly online video teaching, combined with online answers for assessment.

4.4

Self-study. For basic theories, skills and regulations, learners can self-study in accordance with the requirements of the syllabus, and participate in online answers for assessment.

5 Training content

5.1

Laws and regulations related to hospital infection management.

5.2

Relevant standards and norms for hospital infection management.

5.3

Professional theory, knowledge and skills of hospital infection management.

Appendix A

(Normative appendix) Training content outline A.1 Core courses A.1.1 Laws and regulations the training content of relevant laws and regulations is as follows.

- a) "Law of the People's Republic of China on the Prevention and Control of Infectious Diseases" and its implementation rules;
- b) "Regulations on the Management of Medical Institutions" and its implementation rules;
- c) "Biosafety Management Regulations";
- d) "AIDS Prevention and Control Regulations";
- e) "Medical Waste Management Regulations";
- f) "Administrative Measures for Hospital Infections";
- g) "Administrative Measures for Pre-inspection and Triage of Infectious Diseases";
- h) "Administrative Measures for the Clinical Application of Antibacterial Drugs";
- i) "Medical Waste Management Measures for Medical Institutions";
- j) "Disinfection Management Measures";
- k) "Guiding Principles for Clinical Application of Antibacterial Drugs";
- l) "Nosocomial Infection Outbreak Report and Management Regulations";
- m) Other laws, regulations, standards, norms and documents related to hospital infection management and infectious disease management.

A.1.2 Standard

The training content of relevant health standards is as follows.